PREFACE

This publication had its genesis many years ago with the creation of the Dictionary of Occupations for Trinidad and Tobago (DOTT 1992) which was produced by the Occupational Research Unit of the Ministry of Education. The occupational classification was incorporated into the first part of the DOTT and called the Code Structure. It was based on the International Labour Organisation's International Standard Classification of Occupations (ISCO) of 1988, modified to reflect the national occupational structure, and formed the core of the DOTT.

ISCO serves as a model for the development or revision of corresponding national classifications and facilitates international communication on occupational information, in particular the production and presentation of reasonably comparable statistics for different countries.

Subsequent sectoral updates of the DOTT and career guidance material produced by the Occupational Research Unit continued to use the DOTT 1992 Code Structure for classification and coding purposes.

In 2008, ISCO was updated with the input of the international community and all countries which pattern their classifications on ISCO have since been updating their own national occupational classifications. In 2010, the Occupational Research Unit produced the DOTT sectoral publication 'Occupations in Energy (Oil & Gas)' using an adaptation of the ISCO 08 classification system.

Now, for the first time, the national occupational classification is being produced as a stand-alone document. It is broadly compatible with ISCO 08 but has been tailored to reflect a national viewpoint. It may therefore be used for national, regional or international applications.

Occupational classifications are useful wherever information is being collected, organised and communicated according to occupational categories, for example in the fields of education and training, career guidance, human resources, occupational health and safety and statistical and labour market analysis. In Trinidad and Tobago, such users may have been using ISCO 88, DOTT 1992 or some other classification instrument. It is recommended that the current publication, NOCTT be used as the classification of choice by all individuals and agencies involved in categorizing occupational data to ensure a unified national approach.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The National Occupational Classification of Trinidad and Tobago (NOCTT) was planned and developed by the Occupational Research Unit, Curriculum Planning and Development Division of the Ministry of Education.

The project was coordinated by Zubaida Mohammed-Ali and information was compiled, coded and verified by Christine Baptiste, Selwyn Bharath, Davindranath Mahabir, Zubaida Mohammed-Ali and Joslyn Paul. Clerical support was provided by Carol Wilkes and Candice David.

The input of various public and private agencies and individuals who provided comments on the draft of the document is acknowledged. Special thanks are due to the Central Statistical Office for the detailed recommendations submitted. Their assistance and cooperation contributed significantly to the development of this publication.

The Occupational Research Unit acknowledges with gratitude the legacy of Mr. Jaswant Gulati, former ILO Advisor in Occupational Classification who laid the foundation for occupational classification in Trinidad and Tobago.

UPDATING OF THE NATIONAL OCCUPATIONAL CLASSIFICATION OF TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO (NOCTT)

Occupational changes take place quite frequently in response to technological developments, new industrial agreements and organizational restructuring.

The Occupational Research Unit in the Ministry of Education would welcome information on new and emerging occupations or obsolescence of occupations to facilitate updating of the NOCTT.

Information should be forwarded to the following:

INTRODUCTION

The National Occupational Classification of Trinidad and Tobago 2013, henceforth termed NOCTT, provides a comprehensive system for classifying and coding occupations in the national labour market. While no classification can claim complete coverage of the labour market, the NOCTT attempts to capture most occupational groups as they exist.

The present document contains a Classification Structure consisting of Major, Sub-Major, Minor and Unit Groups (down to the four-digit level), the actual Classification, containing all occupational groups, definitions of each group and an illustrative list of occupations for each Unit Group, and an Alphabetical Index.

The NOCTT is modelled on the International Standard Classification of Occupations (ISCO 08), which places occupations into groups based on the criteria of work performed and on the skill or ability necessary to carry out the relevant duties, ranging in a progression from the broadest to the most detailed level of aggregation. However, the ISCO has been adapted, where deemed necessary, to reflect the occupations existing in this country.

STRUCTURE OF THE CLASSIFICATION

Occupations are classified into Major, Sub-Major, Minor and Unit groups, each having its own code.

Major Groups are the broadest grouping of occupations. The groups are based on the skill levels of workers and on very general areas of economic activity and are a convenient means of grouping all occupations falling within these wide fields of work.

Sub-Major Groups are divisions of the respective Major Groups. These are based on skill specialization relating to the field of knowledge required, the tools and machinery used, materials worked on or with, and the kinds of goods and services produced.

Minor Groups are a breakdown of Sub-Major Groups and also a collection of Unit Groups. The groupings at this level are still fairly general.

Unit Groups are the most specific grouping of occupations. They are basic groups of occupations in which the main tasks have many similar characteristics. Unit Groups thus have occupational homogeneity and there is a closer relationship between occupations in the same Unit Group in terms of work performed than between occupations from different Unit Groups. The exception to this would be what is termed Residual Unit Groups whose titles incorporate the words 'not elsewhere classified'. These groups do not display the same homogeneity as other Unit Groups.

The Major Groups are more fully described as follows:

Major Group 1 Managers

This Major Group includes occupations whose main tasks consist of planning, directing, coordinating and evaluating the overall activities of government, enterprises and other organizations, or of organizational units within them, and formulating and reviewing their policies, laws, rules and regulations. Formal preparation for these occupations may be supplemented or replaced partly or wholly by on-the-job training and/or experience.

Major Group 2 Professionals

This Major Group includes occupations whose main tasks require a high level of professional knowledge and experience. The main tasks consist of increasing the existing stock of knowledge, applying scientific and artistic concepts and theories, teaching about the foregoing in a systematic manner or engaging in any combination of these activities. Competent performance in most occupations in this Major Group requires skills at the fourth ISCO skill level which have been acquired from tertiary-level education leading to a university or post-graduate university degree. On-the-job training and/or experience may supplement formal preparation or replace it partly or wholly.

Major Group 3 Technicians and Associate Professionals

This Major Group includes occupations involving the performance of mostly technical and related tasks connected with research and the application of scientific or artistic concepts, operational methods, and government or business regulations. Most occupations in this Major Group require skills at the third ISCO skill level which have been acquired from post-secondary education leading to an award not equivalent to a first university degree. On-the-job training and/or experience may supplement formal preparation or replace it partly or wholly.

Major Group 4 Clerical Support Workers

This Major Group includes occupations which involve the recording, organising, storing, computing and retrieving of information and performing a number of clerical duties in connection with money-handling operations, travel arrangements, requests for information and appointments. Most occupations in this Major Group require skills at the second ISCO skill level which have been acquired from secondary-level education lasting about five years. On-the-job training and/or experience may supplement formal preparation or replace it partly or wholly.

Major Group 5 Service and Sales Workers

This Major Group includes occupations involving personal and protective services related to travel, housekeeping, catering, personal care, or protection against fire and unlawful acts, or demonstrating and selling goods in wholesale or retail shops and similar establishments, as well as at stalls and in markets. Most occupations in this Major Group require skills at the second ISCO skill level which have been acquired from secondary-level education lasting about five years. On-the-job training and/or experience may supplement formal preparation or replace it partly or wholly.

Major Group 6 Skilled Agricultural, Forestry and Fishery Workers

Workers in this Major Group grow and harvest field or tree and shrub crops, gather wild fruits and plants, breed, tend or hunt animals, produce a variety of animal husbandry products, cultivate, conserve and exploit forests, breed or catch fish and cultivate or gather other forms of aquatic life in order to provide food, shelter and income for themselves and their households. Most occupations in this Major Group require skills at the second ISCO skill level which have been acquired from secondary-level education lasting about five years. On-the-job training and/or experience may supplement formal preparation or replace it partly or wholly.

Major Group 7 Craft and Related Trades Workers

Workers in this Major Group apply specific knowledge and skills to construct and maintain buildings, form metal, erect metal structures or set machine tools. They make, fit, maintain and repair machinery, equipment or tools, carry out printing work, and produce or process foodstuffs, textiles, or wooden, metal and other articles, including handicraft goods. The work is carried out by hand and by hand-powered and other tools which are used to reduce the amount of physical effort and time required for specific tasks, as well as to improve the quality of the products. The tasks call for an understanding of all stages of the production process, the materials and tools used and the nature and purpose of the final product. Most occupations in this Major Group require skills at the second ISCO skill level which have been acquired from secondary-level education lasting about five years. On-the-job training and/or experience may supplement formal preparation or replace it partly or wholly.

Major Group 8 Plant and Machine Operators and Assemblers

Workers in this Major Group operate and monitor industrial and agricultural machinery and equipment on the spot or by remote control, drive and operate trains, motor vehicles and mobile machinery and equipment, or assemble products from component parts according to strict specifications and procedures. The work mainly calls for experience with and an understanding of industrial and agricultural machinery and equipment as well as an ability to cope with machine-paced operations and to adapt to technological innovations. Most occupations in this Major Group require skills at the second ISCO skill level which have been acquired from secondary-level education lasting about five years. On-the-job training and/or experience may supplement formal preparation or replace it partly or wholly.

Major Group 9 Elementary Occupations

This Major Group covers occupations which involve the performance of simple and routine tasks which may require the use of hand-held tools and considerable physical effort. Most occupations in this Major Group require skills at the first ISCO skill level which have been acquired from primary education. On-the-job training and/or experience may supplement formal preparation or replace it partly or wholly.

Major Group 0 Defence Force.

Defence Force occupations include all jobs held by members of the Defence Force. Members of the Defence Force are those personnel who are currently serving in the Defence Force, who are not free to accept civilian employment and are subject to military discipline. Included are regular members of the Regiment, Coast Guard and Air Guard. Excluded are persons in civilian employment of government establishments concerned with defence issues, such as police, customs and immigration services. Reference to skill level has not been made in defining the scope of this major group.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN DOTT 1992 AND THE NOCTT

Following, are some of the major differences between the classification contained in DOTT 1992 and the current national occupational classification, consistent with changes made to ISCO 08:

- (1) The 10 Major Groups at the top level of NOCTT are the same used in DOTT 1992, however, the names of some of the Major Groups have been changed slightly as to more clearly indicate their contents and some occupational groups have been moved from one Major Group to another; for example, former Major Group 1- Legislators, Senior Officials and Managers is now called Managers; former Major

Group 4 - Clerks is now called Clerical Support Workers; former Major Group 6 - Skilled Agricultural and Fishery Workers is now called Skilled Agricultural, Forestry and Fishery Workers.

- (2) In determining the skill level of an occupation, the nature of the work performed has been given more emphasis than the formal education and training required. It has therefore been possible to adopt the principle that all jobs that require the performance of identical, or very similar sets of tasks are classified in the same group in NOCTT regardless of the formal qualifications by an individual.
- (3) With the developments in technology in professional and technical work, some categories in DOTT 1992 have been merged, split or moved to reflect occupational and technological change in the labour market.
- (4) New categories have been created to accommodate new or emerging occupational groups.
- (5) Other changes in the classification structure have been made to ensure that the level of detail provided is adequate and useful. This has resulted, for example, in an increase in the number of Unit Groups in Major Group 2, Professionals, while the number of Unit Groups in Major Group 8, Plant and Machine Operators and Assemblers has significantly decreased.

SPECIFIC AREAS OF CHANGE

Managers

There has been a major shift away from the former approach of broadly grouping managers into Corporate or Small Business Managers. All jobs that require leadership and management of large and complex organizations, that typically have a hierarchy of managers, are classified in a single Sub-Major group, chief Executives, senior officials and legislators. The group Administrative and commercial managers is intended to include the managers of organizational units that typically provide services or support functions across organizations. They may be managers of departments within companies or government departments or the managers of small companies that provide these services to other organizations. The group Production and specialized services managers is for managers responsible for producing the goods and services provided by the organization. Jobs in these groups generally require qualifications and experience related to an occupation in Major Group 2. Hospitality, shop and related services managers generally do not require formal educational qualifications at professional level.

Information And Communications Technology (ICT)

There has been a significant update and expansion of categories concerning the provision of goods and services related to ICT, allowing especially for the identification of professional and associate professional occupations in ICT and the growing convergence between information and telecommunications technologies. This applies particularly to Major Groups 2 and 3 with respective Sub-Major Groups 25 Information and Communications Technology Professionals and 35 Information and Communications Technicians.

Health Services Occupations

There has been increased coverage of health services occupations to reflect international trends in the health work force as observed by the World Health Organization. This is useful when addressing problems of comparability between countries especially in the area of nursing. To address this issue, new groups have been created in Major Groups 2 and 3 at the Sub-Major and Minor Group levels.

Administrative Occupations

NOCTT recognizes that there should be better identification of occupations that involve the development, implementation and administration of government and corporate policy and of administrative occupations requiring highly specialized skills.

This includes the following groups:

- 121 - Business Services and Administration Managers
- 122 - Sales, Marketing and Development Managers
- 242 - Administration Professionals
- 334 - Administrative and Specialized Secretaries

Clerical Support Workers

This Major Group has been re-organized to provide more meaningful detail on this category of occupation. The main changes are:

- A new Minor Group for General Office Clerks
- Providing separate Minor Groups for General Secretaries and Clerks who primarily operate keyboards
- An expanded group of Client Information Workers
- A new Unit Group for Personnel Clerks

Sales Workers

The number of Unit Groups in Sub-Major Group 52, Sales Workers has increased from 2 in DOTT 1992 to 13 in the NOCTT and the Minor Group structure of the groups has been modified.

Occupations in Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries

Following the ISCO 08 pattern, provision has been made for Subsistence Farmers, Fishers, Hunters and Gatherers in Major Group 6 where none existed in DOTT 1992. If the main aim of production is to provide goods (mainly food) for consumption by workers' own households, these workers should be classified in Sub-Major Group 62 Subsistence Farmers, Fishers, Hunters and Gatherers.

Those who only perform simple tasks requiring little judgment or experience should be classified in Major Group 9. Additional Unit Groups have been provided in Sub-Major Group 92 Agriculture, Fishery and Forestry Labourers. From 3 Unit Groups in DOTT 1992, there are now 7 groups in NOCTT. Those working on crop farms, livestock farms and mixed-crop farms now have their own Unit Groups and separate groups have also been provided for garden and horticultural labourers and agro-processing labourers.

MODIFICATIONS TO ISCO 08

Modifications to ISCO 08 have been made to more adequately reflect the national occupational structure. These have taken three forms: modification of ISCO titles, creation of new groups in the NOCTT and modification of group definitions.

Modification of ISCO titles

Some twenty eight of ISCO titles have been modified. Ten of these relate to the Defence Force and were required simply because in Trinidad and Tobago the international term ‘Armed Forces’ is not used. A similar example is that the group title Lawyers was changed to Attorneys-at-Law since this is the title used by the local profession.

Other changes were made to broaden the coverage of the group, for example, Minor Group 133 Information and Communications Technology Service Managers became Information and Communication Managers and the new group now covers managers in publishing, motion picture, video and television production, programming and broadcasting, as well as information and communications technology service managers.

The Sub-Major group Teaching Professionals was broadened to become Education and Training Professionals since this group also includes persons who design and modify curricula, advise on teaching methods and aids, and provide educational counseling.

Addition of New Occupational Groups

Some 5 Sub-Major Groups, 10 Minor Groups and 31 Unit Groups have been added to ISCO 08. In all cases, this was because the occupations assigned to these groups could not be suitably classified elsewhere. Following are some examples:

There are several education and training personnel who do not perform the full range of tasks carried out by Education and Training Professionals, thus the Sub-Major Group 36 Education and Training Associate Professionals and related Minor and Unit Groups were created.

ISCO 08 contained only 1 Unit group in Major Group 8 for all Food and Related Products Machine Operators (8160). Since these occupations were too numerous and varied to fit into 8160, 8 additional Unit Groups were created in Major Group 8.

Under a broader group of Machinery Mechanics and Repairers, ISCO 08 provided Unit Groups for motor vehicle, aircraft, agricultural/industrial and bicycle mechanics and repairers but provided no group to accommodate ship/boat or general mechanics and repairers. An additional group 7239 Machinery Mechanics and Repairers not elsewhere classified was therefore created in NOCTT.

Modification of Group Definitions

The modification of group definitions occurred at times because of modification to the group title. So, for example, a change from Information and Communications Technology Service Managers to Information and Communication Managers required a rewrite to now include managers in publishing, motion pictures, video and television production, programming and broadcasting.

On other occasions, modification was required to remove words or phrases which are alien to the national context; for example, in the definition of Tree and Shrub Crop Growers, the words ‘tea bushes’ and ‘rubber trees’ were removed; in the definition of Livestock and Dairy Producers, the words ‘camels’ and ‘wool’ were removed. These changes were done without affecting the overall meaning of the definition.

In the definition of Upholstery and Related Workers, the word ‘rexine’ was removed as an example of an upholstery material since it would be unknown to the average reader even though it might be familiar to upholsterers.

CODING STYLE

The NOCTT uses a 6-digit code unlike ISCO 08 which uses a 4-digit code, however, the coding style of the first four digits closely parallels that of ISCO 08.

The first digit denotes the Major Group, the first two digits denote the Sub-Major Group, the first three digits denote the Minor Group, and the first four digits denote the Unit Group. The entire six-digit code number, including the two digits right of the decimal point, indicates the occupational category.

The use of final zeros and final nines has particular meaning in the classification. Where a group is the only one within a larger group, it ends in a zero. So, for example, the minor group 835 Ships' Deck Crews and Related Workers has only one Unit Group, thus it is coded as 8350 and carries the same title. On the other hand, where a larger group has more than one constituent group, the zero is not used, viz.

834	Mobile plant operators
8341	Mobile farm and forestry plant operators
8342	Earthmoving and related plant operators
8343	Crane, hoist and related plant operators
8344	Lifting truck operators

The final nine is an indicator of a residual group, usually containing the words 'not elsewhere classified' for instance, 1439 Services managers not elsewhere classified or 5249 Sales workers not elsewhere classified.

Within Unit Groups, the NOCTT assigns special codes for supervisors, general occupations and residual occupations. In addition, it separates different elements within groups while leaving room for additional titles.

Supervisors of workers within a Unit Group are coded above .10 starting with .01. However in the case of supervisory groups such as Construction Supervisors or Manufacturing Supervisors, codes will start at .11 since the occupations are considered normal for those groups.

A code ending in .10 is reserved for 'General' occupations where workers perform the range of duties covered by the Unit Group. The code .90 is reserved for residual occupations which have not been assigned another specific occupational code. All other occupations are coded between .11 and .89.

A clustering system is used within Unit Groups according to the nature of the group. A homogenous group, such as Hotel Receptionists starts coding at .11 and continues. Another type with multiple components such as Sports Coaches, Instructors and Officials leaves gaps to accommodate additional occupations at some future time. The components start at .11, .21 and .31.

It is possible that a Unit Group title may contain only one component e.g. Legislators, but the occupations can be separated into different components, e.g. Upper House, Lower House, THA and Local Government. In this case, this type of Unit Group will be coded like the Unit Group with multiple components.

Conversely, some groups appear to contain two elements, for example, Motor Vehicle Mechanics and Repairers. However, in practice, it would be difficult to distinguish between these two components, thus, there is no clustering.

FORMAT OF THE CLASSIFICATION

The Classification is laid out in three columns. The first column contains current classification codes. The second column contains occupational groups and definitions and occupational titles. It will be noted that several Unit groups taken from ISCO 08 contain no occupations. The groups have been retained to provide the necessary space to accommodate future developments in the national labour market.

The third column contains codes from DOTT 1992. It will be observed that many spaces in this column carry a dash. This may indicate that the relevant group or occupation did not exist in DOTT 1992, but it may also be that the group was known by another name, for example, the current Unit Group 2120 Mathematicians, Actuaries and Statisticians has a dash in the third column because the relevant occupations were contained in two DOTT groups 2121 and 2122. If an occupation was published in a sectoral update subsequent to DOTT 1992, this third column will also carry a dash.

The occupational titles in the second column are printed in three formats. Base titles, the titles by which occupations are commonly known by, are printed in bold capitals. Alternate titles, which immediately follow base titles, and are the other titles by which occupations are known, are printed in bold upper/lower case type. Related titles, which are sub-sets of the occupations, are listed in alphabetical order under the base title in upper/lower case type (not bold).

ALPHABETICAL INDEX

The titles in the alphabetical index follow the same format as the body of the classification, that is, base titles in bold capitals, alternate titles in bold upper/lower case type and related titles in upper/lower case type (not bold).

Not all titles contained in the alphabetical index appear in the body of the classification. Where an occupation has many related titles, some will appear only in the alphabetical index but carry the occupational code to refer the reader back to the appropriate occupation in the body of the classification.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX

The Alphabetical Index has been designed to reflect various types of titles. The same kind of type is used as that used to differentiate titles in the occupational classification. Base titles are in BOLD-FACE, UPPER-CASE LETTERS; alternate titles are in Bold-Face, Upper/Lower Case Letters; related titles are in Upper/Lower Case letters. Some titles listed in the Alphabetical Index, do not appear on occupational descriptions. Their six-digit code number refers to the description to which they are affiliated.
